THE PROBLEM AND THE IDEA

SBAR Call

Practice emergency SBAR calls with your own voice and get instant feedback.

In an obstetric emergency, new staff must report fast and clearly. It is hard to practice that under real pressure.

- New midwives and nurses must call a doctor in an emergency
- They need to say the most dangerous fact first

How it works

You call a doctor, speak your SBAR report, and see your results right away.

- Choose the postpartum hemorrhage scenario and read the patient chart
- Tap to call, then speak your report with voice recognition
- No microphone? Type your report in the backup text box
- Two meters, Priority and Brevity, plus feedback on missing info and filler words

Why it matters and what's next

Short, clear reports help a doctor act quickly. Practice builds that habit before a real emergency.

- You can retry and see your recent scores
- The tone is soft pink and cream, with Japanese and English
- Starts with one scene so it can be finished well
- Next: CTG reading and reporting, already shown as Coming soon
